Tweet: A four-star American air force general fears that the US and China may go to war in 2025. In a leaked memo to his top commanders, he wrote, "I hope I am wrong. My gut tells me we will fight in 2025." @ft @dimi

Summary: General Mike Minihan, head of US Air Mobility Command, said the two military powers were likely to end up at war because of a series of circumstances that would embolden Chinese president Xi Jinping. "I hope I am wrong. My gut tells me we will fight in 2025," Minihan wrote in a private memo to his top commanders. As head of Air Mobility Command, Minihan oversees air-related logistics across the US military. The four-star general previously served as deputy head of Indo-Pacific Command, which would be directly responsible for commanding US forces in any conflict with China.
