

Macro Roundup Article

Headline: 2022 Review: How Republicans Lost Despite Winning the Popular Vote

Article

Link: <https://www.nytimes.com/2022/12/13/upshot/2022-republicans-midterms-analysis.html>

Author(s)	Nate Cohn
Publication	New York Times
Publication Date	January 04, 2023

Tweet: .@Nate_Cohn of @NYT notes that Republicans won the national House vote 51% to 48% but lost statewide in key Senate races where they won the statewide House vote, as candidates backed by former President Trump ran far behind mainstream Republicans in PA, AZ, GA, and NV.

Summary: Republicans won the national House popular vote by three percentage points — 51 percent to 48 percent. They still won by two points after adjusting for races in which only one major party was on the ballot. Republican candidates won the most votes for U.S. House in all four of the crucial Senate states where Republicans fell short: Pennsylvania, Arizona, Georgia, and Nevada. The “MAGA” Republicans — as characterized by The Cook Political Report, based on their backing from Mr. Trump in the primaries — ran far behind the mainstream Republicans.

Related Articles: nan

Primary Topic: Politics

Topics: Factoid, Op-Ed/Blog Post, Politics, Sell-by Date

Permalink: https://www.edwardconard.com/macro-roundup/nate_cohn-of-nyt-notes-that-republicans-won-the-national-house-vote-51-to-48-but-lost-statewide-in-key-senate-races-where-they-won-the-statewide-house-vote-as-candidates-backed-by-former-president?view=detail

Featured Image

Link: <https://www.edwardconard.com/wp-content/uploads/2023/01/1.4.23-Republican-votes.png>