

Macro Roundup Article

Headline: Can Democrats Survive the Looming Crisis in New York City's Outer Boroughs?

Article Link: <https://vulgar marxism.substack.com/p/can-democrats-survive-the-looming>

Author(s)	Matt Thomas
Publication	Vulgar Marxism
Publication Date	January 26, 2023

Tweet: @MattThomasNYC argues the GOP's performance in New York in last year wasn't driven by suburban voters but by minority voters in NYC who accounted for 2/3 of the decline in democratic margins btw 2018-2022.

Summary: The suburbs account for just over a third of the decline in the Democratic margin of victory between 2018 and 2022. The people of New York City, through a combination of defection and abstention, account for most of the rest. Narrowing our focus to only those precincts where at least three-quarters of residents share the same racial identity – which I'll refer to as racial enclaves – the trends are even more pronounced. Between 2018 and 2022, Hispanic and Asian enclaves swung fifty-eight and fifty-two points toward the GOP, respectively. Their turn to the right was far more decisive than that of white enclaves, which swung thirty-two points toward the GOP. For their part, black enclaves moved just eight points to the right over the same period. Between 2014 and 2022, the swings were as follows: six points in black enclaves, forty-two points in white enclaves, fifty-six points in Hispanic enclaves, and fifty-eight points in Asian enclaves. Now that's what I call a revolt.

Primary Topic: Politics

Topics: Data, Factoid, Op-Ed/Blog Post, Politics

Permalink: <https://www.edwardconard.com/macro-roundup/mattthomasnyc-argues-the-gops-performance-in-new-york-in-last-year-wasnt-driven-by-suburban-voters-but-by-minority-voters-in-nyc-who-accounted-for-2-3-of-the-decline-in-democratic-margins-btw-20?view=detail>

Featured Image Link: <https://www.edwardconard.com/wp-content/uploads/2023/01/Queens-Gubernatorial-Lines.png>