Tweet: Joining Dartmouth and MIT Yale will again require applicants to submit standardized test scores for admission.

Summary: Yale University will require standardized test scores for admission for students applying to enter in the fall of 2025, becoming the second Ivy League university to abandon test-optional policies that had been widely embraced during the Covid pandemic. The number of students taking the SAT dropped to 1.7 million in 2022, a decline from 2.2 million in 2020.
