EDWARD CONARD

Macro Roundup Article

Headline: A Piece of the Action

Article Link: https://am.jpmorgan.com/content/dam/jpm-am-aem/global/en/insights/eye-on-the-market/a-piece-of-the-action-amv.pdf

Author(s)	Michael Cembalest
Publication	J.P. Morgan
Publication Date	June 07, 2024

Tweet: Michael Cembalest @jpmorgan notes that since 2005 the value of sports franchises has significantly outpaced the S&P 500; franchises are currently richly valued, trading at 5-12x sales relative to ~3x sales for the S&P 500.

Summary: Forbes constructs a valuation index for each league. As shown on the left, these indexes have substantially eclipsed the S&P500 since 2005. To be clear, sports teams are much more expensive than equities: most teams are now valued at 5x-12x sales compared to ~3x sales for the S&P 500. In the NFL and NHL, the valuation gap between the least and most valuable teams is ~2.5x compared to 3.2x in the NBA and 7.6x in the MLB. Less revenue-sharing, the lack of salary caps, and higher exposure to local media rights are part of the reason why the MLB range is much wider. Global sports media contracts were worth $24.5 billion in 2011 and are worth over $62.4 billion today, according to Forbes. A new NBA deal is expected to be announced this week with a reported value of $76 bn over 11 years with NBC, Amazon, and ESPN; that would represent a 2.6x increase in annual contract value over the 2016-2025 deal with ABC/ESPN/TNT/TBS.

Related Articles: It's Mostly a Paper Moon: Alternative Investments Review and Global Views: A Global Perspective on Monetary Easing and The Big Picture: Back to the Future

Primary Topic: Financial Markets

Topics: Financial Markets, GDP, Op-Ed/Blog Post

Permalink: https://www.edwardconard.com/macro-roundup/michael-cembalest-jpmorgan-notes-that-since-2005-the-value-of-sports-franchises-has-significantly-outpaced-the-sp-500-franchises-are-currently-richly-valued-trading-at-5-12x-sales-relative-to?view=detail

Featured Image Link: https://www.edwardconard.com/wp-content/uploads/2024/06/21245-a-p iece-of-the-action-featured-thumbnail-image.png